----- qutIM is an open-source multiprotocol (ICQ, Jabber / GTalk / FaceBook / Ya.Online / LiveJournal, Mail.Ru, IRC) instant messenger. Furthermore, qutIM can be easily customized by every user, including creating personalize soundpacks. Just select a sound for each event in a Sound section of the Configuration dialogue of qutIM. Then, click Export and save.xml file in some folder. Soundpacks: ----- qutIM is not just an instant messenger, but a full-fledged audio tool. Through the separate soundpacks, you can use a single program for an on-line game, an office application, communication with friends, date, or any other. For this purpose, you must have the latest version of qutIM installed. It includes a few packs already. The.xspf (v1.2.2) format of soundpacks is obsolete, but can be loaded on all versions of qutIM to adjust parameters. However, this format can not be used for further modification (eg. to create soundbanks). A set of.xml soundpacks can be used for any version of qutIM, regardless of the number of computer it was installed. The.xspf format for soundpacks is deprecated, can not be loaded on recent versions of qutIM and is in loss of the sound output functionality. Modify soundpacks: ----- You can use any soundpack on any version of qutIM. However, if you use a soundbank on qutIM, you should delete the soundpack (v1.2.2) in order to prevent interference from the soundbank. From the soundpacks folder, you should select the soundpack required for that game, or application, into a Sound folder. As an example, here is the directory for the current version of soundpacks : c:\users\(...)\documents\qutim\soundpacks\version20070502035810\ Soundpacks may contain any number of sound files with various categories of sounds. A sound has one or more categories (Screens, Speed, Game, Chat). The following categories are provided : Screens: Screen 1, Screen 2, etc. The only screen you need to open may be the main screen, Screen 1. Screen 1: Audio
